Dear Alpha Kappa Psi Team,

My name is Abdul-Rahman Al-Zawawi, and I'm a junior majoring in Biomedical Engineering at Wayne State University. While my everyday life is mostly full of 3D models and a lot of math, I have realized that the most effective engineering designs are not usually the ones best looking on paper, but ones with a team with high values dedicated to implementing them. This is precisely why I am interested in Alpha Kappa Psi. I am searching for a brotherhood that will push me to develop my technical background into business leadership.

My experiences have been shaped by the convergence of high pressure environments and innovative problem solving:

- Merging Leadership & Design: As Co-leader of a 20+ member team in the 3D Modeling Club, I learned that communication is just as important as keeping the schedule. Whether its organizing workshops or design competitions, I developed the ability to keep a team of members from different backgrounds united for accomplishing a common objective
- Strategic Analysis: In my time as a Lead consultant for WCG, I lead a team of consultants in researching different things that cause a startup company to fail or succeed. I have also analyzed 30+ compatible suppliers to connect the startup with and presented these insights to the CEO of the company. I am comfortable with taking initiative and keeping track of data, skills I am set on applying to Alpha Kappa Psi's professional projects.
- Customer Service & Efficiency: Managing high pressure shifts at Starbucks and The Home Depot has taught me a lot about the qualities a person should possess when representing a brand professionally even when under stress. These are attributes like patience and integrity which I've learned will go a long way when forming business relationships.

Thank you for your time and opportunity. I look forward to keep developing my leadership skills while also making a positive contribution to the fraternity. I would be thrilled to interview and further discuss the ways in how my aspirations and goals align with the values of Alpha Kappa Psi.

Sincerely,

Abdul-Rahman
