Dear Alpha Kappa Psi,

Hello, my name is Sanika Tailor. I am a junior at the Mike Ilitch School of Business, majoring in Digital Marketing and minoring in Graphic Design. My major reflects my passion for combining creativity with business. Creativity has always been second nature; it gives me the freedom to think outside the box, even when constrained. Business can be limiting, and learning the ways creativity can expand my scope inspires me to do the same for others. I believe that Alpha Kappa Psi will give me the chance to contribute to and learn from a community that values connecting others to new perspectives.

When I first started learning about AKPsi, two core values stood out to me: leadership and service. Whenever I enter a room, I'm someone who strives to leave it better than I found it, not just to tack it onto my resume, but to grow the community around me, with me. In pursuit of this goal, I take every opportunity to contribute my skills, learn from like-minded people, and make meaningful connections. This value rings true regarding my experience at Schoolcraft College, where I was the president of the Schoolcraft College Business Club, and I executed Vision to Venture, the first student-led pitch competition. Leading this competition— from funding to promoting to execution— really helped me understand my strengths and weaknesses while growing as a leader. This experience is what first made me realize my passion for uplifting communities, and that is exactly why I want to join AKPsi.

My importance to the community becomes more apparent when you look at my work in community service. I have built their social media, designed the webpage, and improved the online engagement of an international non-profit called Days For Girls based in Plymouth, MI. This organization helps underprivileged girls and women in rural areas by providing them with menstrual kits and health education. Being from India, the topic of menstrual cycles is taboo, but this organization combats that. Standing with these women reminds me of the importance of sisterhood and parallels the brotherhood that I see in AKPsi.

While this inclusive, community-based advocacy represents core pillars of AKPsi and further emphasizes my alignment with the fraternity, I hope to learn more about the different avenues in which I can exercise creativity in business. Learning from experienced, like-minded individuals will expand my perspectives further, preparing me to become a better business leader of the future. I look forward to the opportunity to improve myself and AKPsi alike.

Sincerely,

Sanika Tailor
